

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for correcting the laser power is provided. This method makes the optical pick-up head of the disk drive system operate in a low-power range and a tolerated high-power range, simulates the actual recording process to detect the laser 5 power outside the upper-bound power, and obtain a better correcting curve, which could avoid affecting the quality of the disk recording.